

Cobble spit where cormorants nest

This cobble spit provides nesting habitat for about 600 pairs of double-crested cormorants. This low lying area juts into the sound between Nomans Land Island and Martha's Vineyard. The area also serves as a haulout site for grey and harbor seals and the landing site for staff when they are working on the island. We often get large numbers of eiders and other sea ducks sitting here and just off shore of the point.
